As a student at Westlake High School in Austin, Texas, Grant Agatston exhibited a level of academic achievement and ambition for extracurricular activities that led him to Indiana University, where he is in his first year. With a view toward character development and achieving his long-term academic goals, he challenged himself to bring his best work to every class. When Grant Agatston faced difficulties in math classes, he invested the added effort and studied with a tutor. His dedication paid off when he raised his grades. A Business major at Indiana University, Grant Agatston views international travel as a valuable experience in a global economy. He enjoys playing basketball and golf in his spare time.
