

John Adam

Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine

W: <http://www.worky.com/john-adam>

A side from his clinical work, John Adam, MD currently serves as an Assistant Professor of Clinical Medicine at the New York Medical College. Dr. John Adam assumed this position in 2001 and has spent more than a decade researching coronary artery disease and cardiac transplants with his colleagues. Since joining the institution, he has published articles in several prominent peer-reviewed publications and presented his research findings at national and international medical conferences.

John Adam's Professional Experience

2000 - Present SuperNaturual Health LTD - Physician

John Adam's Education and Qualifications

1990 Bachelor/Degree - MD
College of Physicians and Surgeons
