Neil Hafer has worked for Enterprise Rent-A-Car for the past two decades, rising through the organization from his first job in Southern California to his current upper-management position in Salt Lake City. Perhaps his greatest challenge as an Enterprise executive occurred when the company asked him to open its first division in the Caribbean.

In 2006, Enterprise assigned Neil Hafer, a 14-year veteran with the firm, to launch a brand-new operational branch in Puerto Rico. He relocated to the capital city of San Juan and started the division with a full-service auto leasing office at Luis Muñoz Marín International Airport. Historically, Enterprise has targeted air travelers as its primary market. In fact, the company has scored first in customer satisfaction for rental car service at airports seven times in J.D. Power and Associates surveys.
