In my free time I enjoy running. It help me clear my mind. It's my method of getting away from the real world and my personal time to analyze problems more deeply.

Photography is also one of my passions. I think it is a way a means of analysis which lets you look at life in greater details by holding it still.

I am quick learner, with an ability to work well under stress.

I think in work, group cooperation as well as working on my own initiative are both equally essential, and concentration on the given task combined with excellent time management are the key to success. In the work I am able to show my abilities to solve problems effectively and face different kinds of difficulties.
