President and CEO Steve Belford established American Freight, Inc., in 1993 to provide working families with affordable furniture options. Eighteen years later, Mr. Belford continues this mission, overseeing the acquisition of stock that he can then make available to the public at a discount. Mr. Belford's customers can find brand-name home furniture for the dining room, living room, bedroom, and entertainment center at reduced prices. To achieve the best deals for his customers, Steve Belford acquires his inventory of factory-sealed name brand pieces from closeouts, buyouts, and liquidated merchandise. As a public distribution center, American Freight can offer customers discounted merchandise by the truckload, with stock available on a first-come, first-served basis. To cut costs further, Steve Belford utilizes modest warehouses to store the company's furniture, and he can therefore eliminate markups associated with high-end showrooms.
